BUSTED! One of the stupidest lies that was ever told during the OPPL-BoT meetings happened at the last meeting on 6/16/14, when Library Director Mary Weimar made the bizarre assertion that she never takes days off. This was during a portion of the meeting when Weimar was on the ropes trying to justify why she's paid nearly $200,000 while the Library is on course to lose $500,000 by this time next year and run in the red. Weimar claimed to the Board that she never, ever takes PTO days. Board Member Cathy Lebert didn't believe her and pressed her on this, to make sure that she heard Mary Weimar correctly...and, again, Weimar asserted that she never, ever took PTO days and that she was at the Library at least 6 days a week doing various things. This sounded like baloney to me, so I put in a FOIA for Mary Weimar's PTO records from 2013 to the present...and sure enough she takes PTO time all the time! So, she lied to the Board (again!) when she claimed she never takes PTO time. What the heck are all of these PTO slips for (that were approved by "SR", Scott Remmenga, the Business Manager)? If Weimar is not taking her PTO time then someone is signing her name to these and Scott Remmenga is also involved in this fraud. That's highly unlikely. More likely is that Mary Weimar just flat-out lied to the Board about whether she takes PTO time or not. It's such a stupid lie, though. Why say something like this when it's so easy to prove her wrong?
